

ABSTRACT

Polycation bioconjugates and a method for producing them. The polycations are capable of transporting active substances of different types. The polycations function as carrier molecules that transport enhancer molecules, thereby enhancing the biological effectiveness of the transported molecules. The polycation bioconjugates of the present invention may inhibit malignant cell proliferation, possess antimicrobial effect, or be configured for gene transport.